Early reporting of concerns plays a critical role in enabling the Company to detect and address potential misconduct, mitigate risks within its gold supply chain, and ensure compliance with applicable regulatory and ethical standards. All individuals associated with the Company are therefore encouraged to raise concerns in good faith whenever they become aware of conduct that may violate the Company's policies, legal obligations, or responsible sourcing commitments.

Compliance Officer
Employees and stakeholders may report concerns directly to the Compliance Officer, who is responsible for receiving, documenting, and assessing reports relating to bribery, corruption, or unethical conduct.

Concerns may also be submitted through the Company's established grievance mechanism, which provides a formal process for reporting issues related to ethical conduct, supply chain integrity, or regulatory compliance.

Confidential Reporting Channels
Where individuals prefer to report concerns confidentially, reports may be submitted through designated confidential reporting channels established by the Company. Anonymous reporting is permitted where individuals wish to raise concerns without disclosing their identity.

All reports received by the Company will be handled in a confidential, impartial, and professional manner. The Compliance Department will conduct appropriate reviews and investigations to assess the credibility of the report and determine whether further action is required. Investigations may involve the review of relevant documentation, interviews with involved parties, and consultation with legal or compliance experts where necessary.

Promise Gold Refinery FZE strictly prohibits any form of retaliation, intimidation, or adverse action against individuals who report concerns in good faith, participate in investigations, or provide information related to suspected misconduct. By maintaining effective whistleblowing and reporting mechanisms, Promise Gold Refinery FZE aims to ensure that potential risks of bribery, corruption, and unethical conduct are identified and addressed promptly, thereby safeguarding the integrity of its operations and upholding its commitment to responsible business practices within the precious metals sector.

Promise Gold Refinery FZE is committed to ensuring that all allegations of bribery, corruption, fraud, or other unethical conduct are addressed promptly, fairly, and in accordance with established compliance procedures. Investigations will be conducted under the oversight of the Compliance Officer, and where appropriate may involve representatives from senior management, legal advisors, internal audit personnel, or external specialists. The objective of the investigation process is to ensure that all allegations are assessed thoroughly while maintaining fairness, confidentiality, and procedural integrity.

Preliminary Assessment
Upon receipt of a report or allegation, the Compliance Officer will conduct an initial review to assess the nature, credibility, and potential severity of the concern. This preliminary assessment will determine whether the matter warrants a formal investigation and will identify the appropriate scope and investigative approach.

Collection and Review of Documentation

Relevant documentation will be gathered and examined as part of the investigation. This may include contracts, supplier agreements, invoices, payment records, procurement documentation, assay reports, transport records, communication records, and other operational documents that may be relevant to the matter under review.

Interviews with Relevant Parties

Where necessary, the investigation team may conduct interviews with employees, suppliers, contractors, intermediaries, or other individuals who may possess relevant information. Interviews will be conducted in a fair and professional manner to obtain accurate and complete information regarding the alleged conduct.

Review of Financial Records and Transactions

Financial records and transactional data may be examined to identify unusual payments, unauthorized transactions, or financial irregularities that may indicate potential bribery, corruption, or improper financial conduct. This review may involve examination of accounting records, payment approvals, banking records, and other financial documentation.

Throughout the investigation process, all information will be handled with strict confidentiality, and access to investigation materials will be limited to authorized personnel involved in the review.
Upon completion of the investigation, the findings will be formally documented, including a summary of the allegations, the investigative procedures undertaken, evidence reviewed, and conclusions reached. The investigation report will be submitted to Senior Management for review and determination of appropriate corrective or disciplinary actions where required.

Where the investigation identifies violations of applicable laws, regulatory requirements, or internal policies, the Company may implement corrective actions, disciplinary measures, termination of employment or business relationships, and where appropriate, may report the matter to relevant regulatory or law enforcement authorities.
